

Version (13/09/2019) to be submitted to the General Assembly in Paris on 14/09/2019

Charter documents for the creation of the DiscourseNet Association

You will find the official presentation of DiscourseNet on our webpage.

<https://discourseanalysis.net/DN> The documents below have been developed by members of the DiscourseNet Board (<http://discourseanalysis.net/DN/board>). Since summer 2019, we have consulted our community through the webpage, email lists and a survey (https://warwickappling.eu.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_3EjmhY5HvOh5vny). This is the final version which we propose to adopt at the DiscourseNet General Assembly on 14/09/2019 at the DNC3-ALED Congress in Paris.

The DiscourseNet Charter consists of three founding documents:

- A. Presentation, mission, principles for public website. This document presents DiscourseNet to all members and users of the website. The document is likely to remain stable even though it can be easily expanded and changed.
- B. Operational and finance guidelines, mostly for governance and internal use. This document is for members, board, steering group, event organisers. We will need to continuously develop this document over time to organise our workflow and improve decision making.
- C. Legal statutes for DiscourseNet e.V., which are needed for the registration as a formal association in Germany. Based on the current Gradnet e.V. statutes (<http://www.gradnet.de/drupal/?q=node/70>), this document will be submitted to a town magistrate in Germany in late 2019. After this point, the statutes can no longer be changed easily.

A. DiscourseNet - presentation, mission, principles for public website

§1 Name: DiscourseNet

The full name of our association is 'DiscourseNet: International Association for Discourse Studies', commonly referred to as 'DiscourseNet' and abbreviated as 'DN'. This name will be used in all official communication (e.g. website, email, promotion of DiscourseNet events).

For purposes of communication we may also rely on the following translations. For multilingual events, we will always use the official name 'DiscourseNet: International Association for Discourse Studies' in combination with one or more of the following translations, e.g.:

- DiscoursNet: Association internationale des Études du Discours
- DiskursNetz: Internationale Gesellschaft für Diskursforschung
- DiscursoNet: Asociación Internacional de Estudios del Discurso
- DiscursoNet: Associação Internacional de Estudos do Discurso
- ДискурсСеть: международная ассоциация исследований дискурса
- ДискурсМрежа: Међународно удружење за истраживање дискурса
- DiscourseNet: associazione internazionale di studi sul discorso
- DiscourseNet: associazione internazionale di studi sul discorso
- خطاب نت: الرابطة الدولية لدراسات الخطاب

The list of available languages and translations can be extended.

In the spirit of DiscourseNet's inclusive, international and multilingual spirit, it is recommended to use the name in the languages spoken in the local community (i.e. in at least two languages if the event is not only in English).

§2 Mission and principles

DN is a community of researchers in Discourse Studies, broadly understood as a field studying social practices of meaning production in the entanglements of verbal and/or non-verbal communication.

DN does not represent a particular school or disciplinary field. It offers a forum for all strands in Discourse Studies.

Discourse researchers mobilize theories and methods to account for objects at the intersection of language and society. In particular, they are interested in how relationships of power and inequality are produced and reproduced in communicative practices.

DN provides a pluralist, multilingual, inclusive and non-hierarchical space for discourse researchers from all disciplinary and geographic backgrounds. It is committed to equality of opportunity irrespective of race, gender, sexuality, ability, nationality, age, ethnicity, class for all those who want to participate in its events and contribute to its activities.

DN encourages critical, democratic reflection on societal issues. Open to social movements, activism and various forms of political struggles inside and outside academia, it encourages discourse researchers to engage in public controversies. It aims to strike a productive balance between specialised academic knowledge and critical awareness of issues in society at large.

B. DiscourseNet - Operational and finance guidelines for governance and internal use

The following guidelines are not part of the legal statutes. The Board may continuously develop this document over time to organise our workflow and decision making.

§1 DiscourseNet events

As the International Association of Discourse Studies, DiscourseNet is open to all discourse researchers from all disciplines and all countries.

DN organizes academic events, initiates research collaborations, facilitates publications in order to achieve its mission.

DN's events and activities include, but are not limited to, the following formats:

- DN Congresses: international events in Discourse Studies with a broad, inclusive theme. Congresses can be multilingual and usually take place every two years. Participants are selected after an open call for papers.
- DN Conferences: thematically focussed and medium-sized events. DN conferences take place after an open call for papers and address an interdisciplinary audience around twice a year.
- DN Group Symposia: small, thematically focussed events. Group events do not require an open call. These events are usually oriented towards specific disciplinary or sub-disciplinary audiences.
- DN (Post)Graduate Schools and Workshops: training-focussed interdisciplinary events for a small or medium-sized group of students. Members of DiscourseNet are involved in the organization of such an event
- Collaborative DN event: an event with other groups or associations worldwide.

§2 Governance: General Assembly, Board, Working Groups, Scientific Council

DiscourseNet is a network that builds on the activities of its members. We welcome and support everybody who joins DiscourseNet. Discrimination based on race, ethnicity, class, gender, sex, sexuality, ability, age is not accepted. It is critically discussed in DN.

All DiscourseNet members may vote in the General Assembly (i.e. Mitgliederversammlung of DiscourseNet e.V.). The Assembly sets the agenda and decides on all questions concerning DiscourseNet. In the Assembly, all members can make suggestions and contribute to activities in DiscourseNet (e.g. the organization of events and maintenance of the webpage). The Assembly will be regularly informed by the Treasurer about the financial activities at a conference or congress. The Assembly congregates at least once every two years during DiscourseNet events or through technological means.

The DiscourseNet Assembly elects legal representatives of DiscourseNet (the Vorstand of DiscourseNet e.V.). They are at least President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Candidates for these three functions present themselves to the DN community and say with what team of legal representatives they would prefer to work.

Candidates circulate their ideas for the association among all members. They are expected to present a strategy concerning diversity and an efficient workload organization.

The legal representatives appoint the members of the DiscourseNet Board, who actively contribute to DiscourseNet. The Board should not have more than 20 members including the legal representatives. The DiscourseNet Board is to reflect the diversity and investment in ongoing activities of DiscourseNet.

Decision-making in DiscourseNet aims to follow the principles of democracy, diversity, transparency and efficiency. Decisions are taken by a majority of Board members. The legal representatives can veto Board decisions if they do not comply to the mission and principles of DiscourseNet. The Board should put strategic decisions and major investments before the Assembly. Roles and tasks within the Board can be swapped at any time. Members of the Board usually serve until the following Assembly. If a member of the Board steps down before the end of the regular term, the legal representatives may appoint an interim replacement through unanimous decision.

Board members deal with a number of tasks, including:

- website maintenance and development
- internal communications
- external communications
- finances
- decision on and planning of events and activities
- publications
- projects
- Event organization
- Working Groups

DiscourseNet members are encouraged to form Working Groups with a specific focus and scope. Working Groups meet regularly and they pursue a defined objective (e.g. thematic events, a research or publication project, a regional representation...). For a group to be recognised as a DiscourseNet Working Group, the Board will need to evaluate the idea of the Working Group and accept it unanimously. One Board member, who may or may not be a member of the Working Group, should represent the Working Group in the Board.

The Board appoints the members of the Scientific Council for two years through majority decision. Scientific Council members may come from other organizations. They are academics who are willing to support DN with their occasional advice, recognized experience and other networks.

Proposals for prospective DN events must be approved by a majority of DN Board members. DN events can be proposed to the Board Member responsible for DN Event planning. The DN Board identifies (co-)organizers and helps find participants for DN events. Organizers are requested to consult the guidelines and draft a road map. They will benefit from DN's organizational resources and experience.

§3 Membership

DiscourseNet is supported by its members. Members' fees cover operational costs, including the maintenance and development of the website, administrative costs, the logistics and organisation of events. While DN always tries to mobilize support elsewhere, members' fee provide a stable and sustainable income. During the General Assemblies, DN will report on incoming and outgoing funds.

Anybody can become a member of DN. Membership is required for the attendance of DiscourseNet events, for the General Assembly as well as for Steering Group and Board Members. One becomes and stays member by paying the membership fee. Members are entitled to reduced fees at DiscourseNet events. The membership fee needs to be paid once in any given calendar year (01/01-31/12). Registering to use the DiscourseNet website does not require payment of a membership fee.

- Annual membership is valid for 12 months from the date of registration.
- Annual membership fee for active members: 30 €. Only active members may attend DiscourseNet events.
- Annual membership fee for passive members: 10 €. Passive members do not attend DN events and declare themselves as under- or unfunded researchers.
- Changes to the fee structure will be proposed at General Assemblies.

We are working on introducing fees that reflect the financial possibilities of our members and can be realised with the limited administrative resources we have. We are considering a three- and five-year rate (70€ and 120€, notably for those can have their fees reimbursed by projects or institutions). We will also offer institutional membership if there is a recognized demand. Members will be invited to make voluntary donations to support DiscourseNet, notably to facilitate activities of under- or unfunded academics. We are working on an integrated payment system (through credit card, bank account, paypal, helloasso...) on our portal. All members have to register on the DN website and to keep their profiles up to date. The records of members will be kept according to our privacy statement and guidelines. We currently do not have non-profit status and will consider applying for it if there is a need. Membership registration is only completed upon payment. We recommend members to set up a permanent order for the payment of the annual fee. Membership automatically ceases if the annual fee is not paid by 12 months after the preceding payment. The Board may decide to not admit or to exclude members of DiscourseNet.

§4 Financial operations

The legal representatives are responsible for all financial questions and decides on the budget. The Treasurer acts on behalf of the Board. He or she has access to the DiscourseNet bank account. The Treasurer prepares a financial report once a year and shares it with the legal representatives. The financial report is reported to the General Assembly.

§5 Collection of fees

DiscourseNet members pay fees from 01/01/2020.

- 1) By bank transfer, currently the bank account is Gradnet e.V.
 IBAN: DE80 1203 0000 1001 1963 18

 Bank address:
 Deutsche Kreditbank AG
 10919 Berlin, Germany
- 2) Via paypal (DN already has a paypal account for Paris conference (dnc3aled@gmail.com, currently associated with GradNet e.V.). After the conference we can repurpose it for the DN Association. NB: Paypal costs DN 5% of intake.
- 3) The Treasurer keeps list (manually) of who has paid. Members may ask for invoices.

C. DiscourseNet Legal Statute - the formal registration as an association in Germany

To become an association, DiscourseNet will rely on the currently inactive association Gradnet e.V. presided by Johannes Angermuller, Martin Nonhoff and Alexandra Boehm. Gradnet e.V. (<http://www.gradnet.de>) will be renamed to DiscourseNet e.V. (e.V. means “eingetragener Verein - registered association”) by late 2019. The future DiscourseNet e.V. will be open to all those who are interested in discourse research. All participants of DiscourseNet events will be required to become members of DiscourseNet, which is expected to attract 500 members in the long run.

Gradnet currently has around 20, mostly inactive, members. A consultation in January-February 2019 shows they are mostly supportive about the transformation of their association into DiscourseNet e.V. They are aware that the change towards DiscourseNet e.V. will change the character of the association fundamentally. All members of DiscourseNet e.V. will have to pay the annual fee. If current members of Gradnet e.V. want to be members of the future DiscourseNet e.V. association, they will have to explicitly apply to the future Board and demand to continue their membership of the association.

Based on the current Gradnet e.V. statutes (<http://www.gradnet.de/drupal/?q=node/70>), this document will be submitted to a town magistrate in Germany in late 2019. After this point, it can no longer be changed easily. The German text is legally binding. The English version is included as information for members of DiscourseNet who do not read German. The English version is not legally binding.

APPENDIX I

Organigram

Appendix II Budget situation and projection

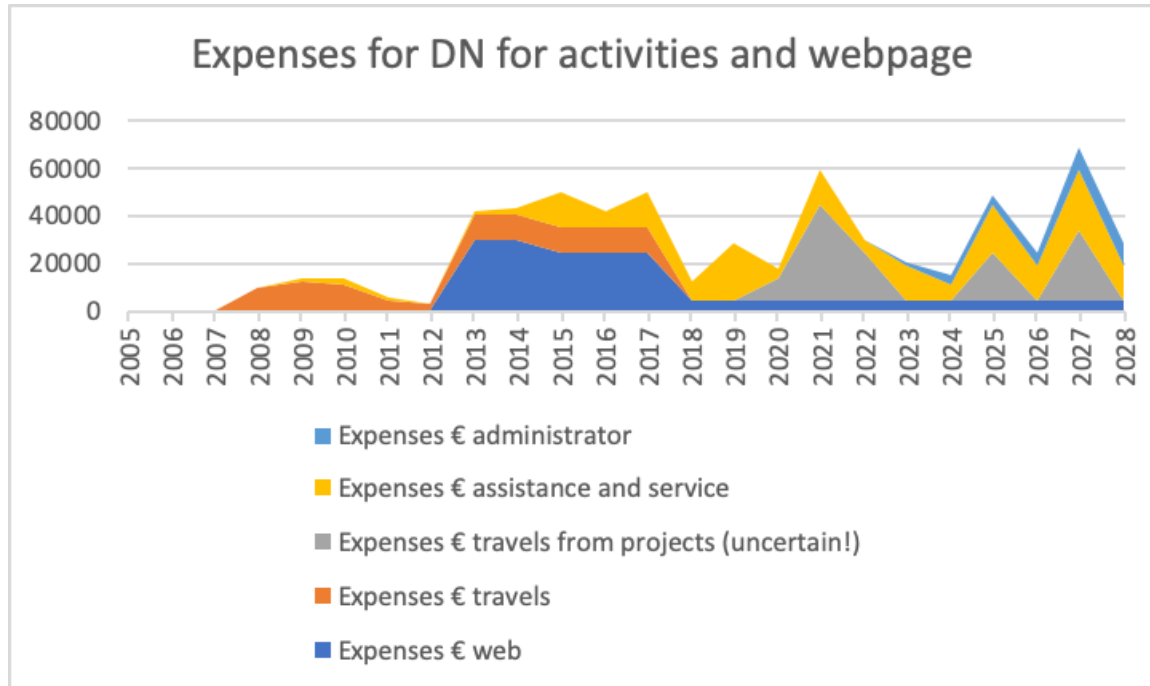

This table shows the number of participants in DN activities (100-300 per year up to 2018). It assumes a growing number of fee-paying members up to around 500 in 2028.

The income numbers are in €. We have had very significant contributions from projects in the past, which are highly variable. In 2019, project contributions are zero. We will continue with those bids and invite everybody to help. However, even if we are successful in attracting more project money, there will be years with zero income.

The expenses are in €. Past numbers are estimates and future numbers are an optimistic scenario with two or three successful project bids.

Up to 2019, DN activities have relied on the voluntary contributions many individuals made to the network (Daniel Wrana programmed the webpage version 1.0 for free). DiscourseNet will remain a community where most contributions and activities will be for free.

DiscourseNet has never aimed, and will never aim to make a profit.

In the past, we received substantial funding from projects (85%, e.g. DFG-MeMeDa, ERC DISCONEX), institutions (7% e.g. Mainz, FHNW Bale) and conference fees (7%). Income has been variable over the years: in some years, we received next to nothing (e.g. in 2012 and 2019). In 2013-2018 a large ERC grant allowed us to spend on travels, administration and relaunching the webpage as version 2.0 (the latter's development taking around >100000€ until 2018).

In the future, uncertainty concerning DN income will grow since we no longer have supporting projects and institutions at the moment. While we keep looking for institutional funding, regular and ongoing expenses such as web maintenance (which requires approximately 4000€ a year) and administration (which is unpaid for the time being) are difficult to cover.

It is against this background that we want to create the DiscourseNet association. The association will make sure our activities can go in years with no institutional support for basic things like webpage maintenance, which needs continuous attention from a professional developer. In the long run, we would also welcome professional administrative support in order to develop other services to the community. A small fee will make a huge difference for maintaining a stable and sustainable infrastructure for the many activities in DiscourseNet.
